JONCANNON TURNS IN HIS SHIELD. Caught Dieing for Drinks when he Should

James J. Concannon, a burly fellow with a andy moustache and red face, was appointed ceman three years ago. He was translerred to the Prince street station three months ago. On Tuesday night Concannon went out on the first tour, at 6 o'clock, to his post in Bullivan street. At 11% o'clock Acting Serhim seated at a table in the saloon 123 Prince street, throwing poker dice for drinks with street, throwing poker dice for drinks with friends. Wiegand told him that charges would be preferred against him, and Concannon went sut on post.

Just after midnight Amelia Bowers, 42 years old, a faded woman, who lives at 123 West Houston street, followed Concannon into the station house and told Capt, McDonnell that the policeman had dragged her into an alleyway at 179 Prince street and assaulted her. Concannon, she said, was standing on the corner of Sullivan and Prince streets at 11% o'clock, when she passed him on her way to her home at 67 Sullivan street, and he called her over to him. He invited her, she said, into a saloon to got a drink, and treated her to a glass of ale and porter. When they went out on the sidewalk he roughly seized her by the arm and dragged her into the dark alley at 179 Prince street. When she followed him out of the alleyway she saw him speak to Policeman Relsier, and she was afraid to make complaint to Relsier, but she went at once to the station house. In support of her story she showed the Capta in her torn clothing.

Capt. McDonnell took the woman before Ruperintendent Murray at the Police Central Office, and while she was repeating her story Concannon came in and, after laying his shield on the Chicl's desk, effered his resignation. Capt. McDonnell made him a prisoner and took him to Jefferson Market Court. The woman hold Justice Patterson the story she had given to Capt, McDonnell made him a prisoner and took him to Jefferson Market Court. The woman loid Justice Patterson the story she had given to Capt, McDonnell made him a prisoner and took him to refere he hind him. Concannon denied that he ad assaulted the woman, but admitted that they had drunk together.

"I have chased this woman from my post a number of times," he said, 'and she makes this charge to get square with me. I resigned because I knew that I might be broke on Boundsman Viegand's charge."

There were several inconsistencies in the woman's story, and Justice Patterson declined to hold Concannon on her charg

WORN OUT BY WORK AND WAITING. Mrs. Moran Tries to Kill her Boy and the

James Moran, a railroad tracklayer, went to New Zealand about two years ago under an engagement to work there for $125 a month. leaving his wife Bridget and their four children in Jersey City. Since her husband's departure Mrs. Moran has supported herself and her children with great difficulty by doing washing by day and sewing by night. He wrote to her that he would return last aummer, but did not come. Mrs. Moran came to fear that he had been killed, and at times she was nearly insane because of her troubles.

On Tuesday Mrs. Moran walked the floor in her rooms at 141 Wayne sireet, Jersey City, wringing her hands and sobbing. At night she refused to go to bed. In the middle of the night her eldest child, Eddle, 10 years old, saw his mother come into the bedroom and put a cloth over the faces of the three other children. She then moved stealthily over to where he was sleeping. She made a thrust at him with a table knife, which he caught. A struggle ensued, and the mother, freeing herself, ran back to the front room, closely followed by her son. Before he could reach her she had cut her throat. His cries aroused the neighbors, and she was sent to the City Hespital. Her recovery is not expected. Her system has been reduced through work and anxiety to so great an extent that the surgeons say she has but a slight chance. The neighbors are caring for the children. Mrs. Moran is 37 years old. wrote to her that he would return last summer

THE O'SULLIVANS IN COURT. Mrs. O'Sullivan Testifies that She was Gullty of No Impropriety.

Jeremiah O'Sullivan, the Brocoklyn druggist, who fired two shots at his wife Catherine in Dentist Charles Latto's rooms in Fulton street on Thursday last, after, as he alleges. discovering her under compromising circumstances with Horace Latto, brother of the stances with Horsee Latte, brother of the dentist, was arraigned yesterday before Justice Kenna.

Mrs. O'Sullivan testified that she went to the rooms to have her teeth filled, and not for any improper purpose. She then detailed the circumstances of the shooting, and pronounced her husband's alignations false.

Horsee Latte testified that he and Mrs. O'Sulivan were eight feet apart when the shots were fired, and that nothing improper occurred. Policeman Muldoon testified that in the police station Latte confessed that he was guilty.

Mr. O'Sullivan waived examination, and was held for the Grand Jury.
